Project Overview

I was missing a good enclosure for my lock picking set so I figured the best way around to deal with this would be to make my own I could also this way bake a Tracker into it So that if I ever lost it I could find it very quickly

Why?

I was afraid of losing my lock picking set so I decided that I would make a box that would let me find it very quickly by making the tracker in I removed the rest of someone stealing it and just taking the tracker off

how

I first onshaped a basic design er put the tracker in stuff the print put the Walnut top casing on created a cover and then velcroed some buckles onto it so it felt kind of like a CS2 case

conclusion

I am very proud of how it came out and very proud of what it did. I love my case now and I believe I will be using this technique for other things if I ever create another or need to store another valuable thing.
